

FORMER BRITISH PREMIER STATES VIEW ON LEAGUE

Lloyd George Arrives for Tour of America; on Friendly Mission.

LEAGUE WEAKENED

Maintains Graeco-Italian War Injurious; League Operation Flayed.

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—David Lloyd-George, war premier of Great Britain, today set foot on American soil for the first time.

Unhappiness and difficulties resulting from the war have been caused by the ineffective application of the treaty of Versailles, Mr. Lloyd-George declared on his arrival in America for a tour of the United States and Canada.

"Has the Versailles treaty brought happiness and a settlement to the world?" he was asked.

"No, I do not think the trouble is with the Versailles treaty. The trouble has been how the treaty has been operated," Mr. Lloyd-George said.

The most important factor which might lead towards a settlement of conditions in Central Europe, which Mr. Lloyd-George said still were grave was the acceptance of the proposals of Secretary Hughes in his New Haven address that the situation be analyzed and adjusted by an international committee of competent statesmen and economists.

Asked whether there was any imminent danger in the Central European situation, the veteran British statesman replied:

"There is always danger in Central Europe. The situation is pretty bad, isn't it? One thing that might have been a help was the acceptance of your Mr. Secretary Hughes' proposal; it is not too late but it is pretty late."

Weakened By Wrangle

The League of Nations, Mr. Lloyd George declared, had certainly been weakened by the Graeco-Italian situation and its settlement. He refused to declare his attitude towards the Italian premier, Mussolini, conduct in the affair.

"The League of Nations," he asserted, answering another question, "cannot be considered a going concern without the participation of the United States."

Mr. Lloyd-George did not think the Ruhr situation any more hopeful now than it had been since the French occupation. "It was difficult to make up one's mind on the status of such an important matter," he declared. However, he did think the resumption of the old relations between France and England are out of the question at the present moment. Contradictory rumors, he said, made it difficult for him to express an opinion on the possibility of a Rhineland republic.

Police reserves today broke up a parade of middle aged women carrying banners denouncing Great Britain outside the hotel where several thousand persons gathered to greet the former premier.

FRENCH DECLINE TO ACCEPT FROZEN FISH

(By the Associated Press)

PARIS.—The French government, anxious to popularize the eating of fish, has been conducting an extensive educational campaign to this end. Much money already has been spent, but the whole thing bids fair to end in failure because of the reluctance of the people to change their ways. They are not heavy fish eaters, and the argument is now advanced that if the government recognizes this and stops its efforts it will save the unexpended portion of the propaganda allowance, something like $5,000,000 francs.

The campaign included "Fish Weeks" at Boulogne and elsewhere; exhibitions of deep sea fishing methods and the showing of films illustrating various aspects of the industry. Smart, new and efficient fishing boats were provided in place of the old picturesque craft, and extensive refrigeration plants were established to care for the catch.

The main trouble seems to be in the popular aversion to fish that has been frozen. The people are not used to them, and apparently they cannot be induced to change their point of view.

Clarke Attorneys Brand Charges of Woman as Untrue

ATLANTA, Oct. 5.—Charges that the suit of Mrs. Helen Katherine Steele filed yesterday, according to the Atlanta Journal, asks $100,000 damages from E. Y. Clarke were declared by Sidney Smith, attorney for Clarke, "to be just another of the efforts that have been made over a period of nearly two years to destroy Clarke." In a statement made public here today following publication of the story of the filing, he said that all charges made were "false."

Mrs. Steele in her petition alleged that Clarke, who formerly was head of the propagation department of the Ku Klux Klan posed as an unmarried man and promised to marry her when his business affairs would permit. She says she knew him as Ralph Clarke.

ADA WAITS GRID SEASON OPENING

East Central Tigers and Murray Aggies to Tangle Today.

Ada was undergoing the first feverish excitement period in anticipation of the opening of the College football season this afternoon at Park field when the East Central Tigers settle their first argument with Murray Aggies of Tishomingo.

Street talk gives the Murray Aggies a favorable part in the dope being circulated before the game. The team is practically the same as was pitted against the local squad last year and has the advantage of more than one year of playing intact.

The Murray Aggies came out with a favorable score against the Southeastern Savages of Durant and consequently demand greater effort on the part of the Tiger crew. The Tigers hope to surpass the showing made by the Durant squad in their game with the Aggies last Friday.

Coach Joe Milam reported all hands ready for the fray this afternoon and indicated that East Central would send its best team against the invading farmers from Tishomingo.

Milam was still dubious over several positions on the Tiger machine but indicated that practically all of his probable first string players would be used in the first tilt.

Football followers, who attend the opening tilt this afternoon at the Park field, may expect to see the stored-up pep of East Central loosed as a boon to the wearers of the orange and black. The Frogs, College pep merchants, have promised several stunts to increase the enthusiasm for on-lookers.

Ouster Proceedings of Military Heads Demands Dismissal

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 5.—Dismissal of ouster proceedings against Col. E. L. Head and Capt. Murray Sells, military officers who recently had charge of Sheriff Sanford's office in Tulsa, was asked of the state supreme court in a motion filed today by the attorney general's department, the officers having already been withdrawn, C. W. King assistant attorney general said.

Attorneys for Sanford opposed the motion, maintaining that the "perpetrated withdrawal does not prevent the military from reentering."

The supreme court was in conference this morning and the Sanford case had not been presented, it was said.

Purnell Believed to be Hiding in Australian Town

(By the Associated Press)

SYDNEY, Australia, Oct. 5.—Inspector Fowler, superintendent of detectives, said today that he believed "King" Benjamin Purnell of the House of David colony in Michigan, is at North Ryde, a small town near here. No instructions to take action against Purnell have been received, Fowler said.

The Sydney Truth recently gave a description of Purnell and the life at the colony near here but stated that the heads of the settlement refused to give any information of Purnell's presence or whereabouts.

Breaks Betrothal To Navy Man To Elope With Dairyman's Son

(By Central Press.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 4.—This city of stately strutting statesmen, dignified society matrons and demure little "debbies" and sub-debs, always has prided itself on doing things as they should be executed "in the better circles."

Weddings, for instance, always have been conducted according to Hoyle—and the ideas of the caterers and florists. Staid old fathers and proud mothers have rested easy, serene in the thought that their sons and daughters would be married "in a fitting manner."

But now uneasiness aunts these homes in the night hour. For there has come an epidemic of rapid romance—dizzy love making to be more exact—which has set all Washington agog.

Within one week six couples in each case affecting at least one prominent family in the capital, has listened to Dan Cupid, ignored mama and the caterers, and eloped. One of the most recent of these six elopements was that of Miss Catherine Radcliffe, daughter of a prominent Welsh family and niece of Lord Glanely of London, and George Wise.

Miss Radcliffe—now Mrs. Wise, of course, was expected to be the sweetly simple bride in a brilliant wedding in the near future. According to reports, she was engaged to Lieutenant Julian Brown, U. S. Marine corps. Folk had discussed the expected nuptials and were waiting for the eventful day.

But Cupid and two others had different plans. Miss Radcliffe met George Wise, son of a Washington dairyman, two days after she met him. Wise asked her for her hand. She accepted him and before social Washington knew of their friendship the two slipped quietly away to Baltimore and were wed. Miss Radcliffe found time, however to break her engagement with Brown, it is said.

Mrs. George Wise, nee Miss Catherine Radcliffe. eligibles may find themselves severely chaperoned for some time to come.

Be that as it may, the Radcliffe-Wise elopement was another shock to the already dazed capital society. lock. If this becomes a fad all the

DARING FEAT OF AIRCRAFT SHOWN

St. Louis Aerial Carnival Shows Burst of Speed of Planes.

(By the Associated Press)

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5.—Daring feats in the presence of thousands of spectators were performed by army, navy and civilian flyers in the second day's events of the International air races being held here.

The main events were the trophy race of the aviators' country club of Detroit for civilian pilots with eight planes, the Merchants Exchange of St. Louis trophy race for large capacity weight carrying postal planes for service entrants. Other events included demonstrations of dirigibles and airplanes, parachute jumping and balloon sniping.

Yesterday, the opening day, a speed of approximately 140 miles an hour were attained by army planes which won the prizes of the Liberty Builders trophy race.

The navy had but two planes in this event and one of them was disabled, but gave the army a stubborn fight. The maximum flight was about the same as made in the races at Detroit last year.

The RN-1, the largest blimp in the world, was on exhibition today. The concluding speed event will be the Pulitzer trophy race for especially high powered army and navy planes which will be held tomorrow, the final day of the races. A speed of almost four miles a minute is expected to be reached in this event.

SIMMONS CLAIMS EXALTED ORDER OF KLAN ORGANIZED

(By the Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Establishment of a second Ku Klux order to be known as the Knights of Kameia, who will wear no masks, has been announced here by William Joseph Simmons, emperor of the clan, who will speak here tomorrow. Only "worthy" klansmen will be elevated to the new order, thus eliminating "undesirables as gained entrance in the old order," Mr. Simmons is quoted as saying.

EIGHT PERSONS BELIEVED INDICTED FOR CONSPIRACY

(By the Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Eight persons are believed to be facing indictments for conspiracy which Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes charges was formed to ruin her reputation in connection with the divorce suit of her husband W. E. D. Stokes, wealthy hotel man. They are reported to have been named by the county grand jury today in a true bill charging conspiracy. The true bill is expected to be returned to court soon after being voted.

TRADES DAY EVENTS TO BE DISCONTINUED

The Retail Merchants association, at the monthly meeting Thursday evening in the basement of the Presbyterian church, decided to discontinue the trade days after tomorrow. Other plans will be laid in the future, however, for going after trade in adjacent territory.

The meeting was well attended and the members were enthusiastic. Credits were discussed more fully than any other subject, and plans laid for curtailing credit to unworthy individuals.

The dinner was served by the ladies of the Presbyterian church. The party also was conducted through the parsonage, which is immediately adjoining the new church building.

Plans for the trade day tomorrow call for a crowning event of the long list of trade day successes. Special prizes are being offered on many articles by various Ada merchants, and it is believed people will be here from a long distance in every direction.

STATE EXPENSES SOAR TO RECORD

Auditor Maintains Too Much Money Being Spent; Million for Month.

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 5.—Expenses of the state government in Oklahoma went over the million mark last month for the second time since the beginning of the fiscal year July 1 last, according to a statement issued today by C. C. Childers, state auditor.

September expenditures amounted to $1,128,378.51, he said.

During August the state spent $1,061,008.62. Expenditures for last month were $518,345.13 in excess of the same month a year ago Childers declared.

The receipts from all sources during September, 1923, reached $381,247.58 which was an increase over the month before of $1,859.96.

No record of deficiency warrants is kept at his department, he explained.

"The government of Oklahoma is costing too much money," said the auditor, and state agencies must conserve their funds or we will face a bond issue as the tax levy of 3 1-2 mills for state purposes will be insufficient for the state government.

During 1908 more than 2,000 vessels entered the ports of Argentina and only four flew the American flag.

CONVICTS DEFEND PRISON FORTRESS

Prisoners Seem Assured of Defense Against Arm of Law.

(By the Associated Press)

EDDYVILLE, Ky., Oct. 5.—The three convicts who for more than two days have defied the efforts of the executive and military departments of the state of Kentucky to dislodge them from their improvised fortress in the state penitentiary here, seemed assured of holding their position until evening according to announcement of Warden John Chilton today.

Warden Chilton said that further conferences to discuss efforts to dislodge the men would not be held until 5:30 this afternoon when the arrival of three members of the board of charities and corrections is expected.

The convicts' hiding place, was said by the warden, made it difficult for them to be dislodged. The convicts used four 90-gallon iron steam boilers in front of the building and another in the rear as a barricade and said that they were located at the only entrances of the building.

In the warden's opinion the convicts could hold out in these places and stand off a regiment if an advance were made upon them.

PRICE'S CLAIM TO FAME WAS THRASHING KAISER

(By the Associated Press)

LONDON.—The death occurred here recently of Alfred Russell Price, and passed almost unheeded, whereas it was worthy of special notice, for he succeeded in accomplishing what thousands of Americans have fished to do but could not, he gave the boy who later became German emperor, a good, sound thrashing.

It happened years ago when Wilhelm was the Crown Prince and was visiting Ilfracombe, an English seaside resort, with his tutor, Wilhelm, in a playfully destructive mood, began to throw stones at some bathing machines belonging to Mr. Price's father. He was told to stop, but took exception to this infringement of his regal rights. Young Price took off his coat and began to belabor the royal youth so successfully that he had administered a black eye and several cuts and bruises before the tutor succeeded in calling off hostilities.

Universal Studio Elephant Dies for Penalty on Temper

(By the Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 5.—"Charley" prize elephant of the Universal studio, faced a "firing squad" of one man today, paying with his life for his vicious temper. He was 189 years old.

More than a month ago the great pachyderm was condemned to die after a notable career in the teak wood swamps of India, circuses and movies in America which was marked by attacks on his trainers at intervals.

All four legs were bound and Harry Lonsdale, keeper of the arsenal at the studios, fired one shot from a powerful elephant gun into Charley's body just under the shoulder. He dropped without a sound.

LOCKHART AGAIN IN HANDS OF LAW

Wanted for Several Charges in Oklahoma and Arkansas.

(By the Associated Press)

FORT SMITH, Oct. 5.—Ed Lockhart, alleged bank bandit, is in jail at Jay, Delaware county, Oklahoma today after six weeks of evading the law of Oklahoma and Arkansas.

Lockhart was captured while sleeping in a barn on the ranch of Charles Baker six miles from Kansas, a small town in Delaware county, and with him the officers arrested P. Dodson, said to be wanted in connection with a train robbery near Bartlesville. Baker was arrested on a charge of harboring criminals.

Sheriff Ben Smith of Delaware county, who led seven officers on the raid, said today that he will hold Lockhart in the Jay jail for a day or two until he decides definitely what he will do with him. Dodson and Baker were taken to jail at Vinita.

Lockhart is wanted in Oklahoma for breaking his parole and a reward of $50 has been offered for him by the warden of the penitentiary. He is also wanted at Harrison, Arkansas, for alleged complicity in the robbery of the People's bank in February, 1921, when Henry Starr, his partner, was killed. Arkansas also wants him in connection with the robbery of the Lead Hill bank about two years ago in which the robbers escaped with approximately $10,000. A reward of $500 has been offered by the Arkansas State Bankers Association.

Lockhart's imprisonment today in the little jail at Jay is the third since Henry Starr and his companions staged the sensational robbery of the People's Bank at Harrison.

Lockhart was captured and held in the Harrison jail for three weeks when he escaped.

SWEDEN SPENDING ON CONSTRUCTION RELIEF

(By the Associated Press)

STOCKHOLM.—The balancing of accounts at the end of the worst period of unemployment which Sweden has ever weathered shows the following debit and credit; a total public outlay of $30,000,000 to provide work for the jobless, about 1,500 miles of new and improved roads, many new bridges, new telephone lines, forty-six new athletic fields, new aviation fields, new barracks, extensive forest improvements, and reforestation and opening up of large new tracts of arable land.

This information is the result of researches made by two leading Stockholm newspapers on the occasion of reporting the lowest amount of unemployment during two and a half years, the figures now being only 20,000 as against 163,000 in February, 1922. Practically all of the large funds expended have been for constructive relief work, while steadily decreasing sums have been set aside for direct subvention. At present only about 150 persons are receiving unemployment doles.

DAVID LLOYD GEORGE TO VISIT IN UNITED STATES

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—David Lloyd-George, the dynamic little Welshman who began his career as a country lawyer and who through the years of the war and its aftermath ruled the destinies of Great Britain as prime minister, is to arrive on the Mauretania today on his first visit to the United States. Accompanying him are his wife and younger daughter.

LEGISLATORS OF STATE PLANNING SPECIAL SESSION

Legislative Opponents of Gov. Walton Indicate Call to be Issued.

BAR INJUNCTION

Lillard Maintains Certifying of Returns not Necessary for Special Call.

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 5.—It was indicated in well informed quarters today that a call for a meeting of the lower house of the state legislature was in prospect and that it would probably go out soon summoning the body for an impeachment session October 17. No statement was forthcoming from the headquarters of the legislative opponents of Gov. Walton, but members of the body unofficially let it be known that such a move might be expected.

It was indicated that the call would not be withheld pending the determination of the injunction action brought by the governor to prevent the state election board from certifying the returns from Tuesday's special election at which a constitutional amendment was approved opening the way for the legislature to investigate Gov. Walton's official acts.

Certifying Not Effective.

Ross Lillard, state senator, declared that it is not necessary for returns from an initiated election to be certified to the secretary of state in order to make the provisions of the initiated measure operative. He asserted that the law provides merely that a question must be clearly settled "before coming effective." He cited as a precedent the action of C. N. Haskell, first governor of Oklahoma, who in 1907 placed the great seal of the state in his grip and brought it from Guthrie where the capital was located to Oklahoma City in the afternoon of the initiated election at which the question of moving the capital was being voted upon. At the hour there seemed to be no doubt that the vote would favor the removal. Haskell was assailed for his action but was sustained in the courts, Lillard said. The first governor's action "in moving the capital in his suit case" has become classic in the history of the state.

The injunction suit brought by Gov. Walton is set for next Tuesday.

SULPHUR SLATED FOR ADA HI TILT

Local High School Squad Leaves for Battle at Sulphur.

The Ada high school football squad will seek to establish another mark in their claims for an all-victorious season this year when they meet the Sulphur squad at Sulphur today.

Fifteen men left on the noon Frisco to engage in the struggle, according to Coach Cox.

While the Sulphur squad has faced a loss in the only game of the season in their battle with Tishomingo last Friday, they are rated as a husky bunch of scrappers.

The Ada squad carries the prestige of a notable victory over McAlester at McAlester last Friday, their score of 17-6 being claimed as a fair barometer in judging the true merits of the team.

The lineup of the Ada eleven for the Sulphur game:

Center—Rayburn.
Right Guard—Willoughby.
Right End—Sneed.
Quarterback—Baker.
Fullback—Hargis.

Rights Of Water And Land Forbidden In New Mexican Court Decision

(By The Associated Press)

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 20.—Land and water rights in Mexico of foreigners are vitally affected by a recent supreme court decision interpreting the famous Article 27 of the Mexican Constitution of 1917, which played an important part in last summer's pre-recognition conference.

The decision, although it does not touch upon that part of Article 27 which nationalizes sub-soil petroleum rights, sets forth, broadly speaking, the principle that although foreigners may comply fully with the provisions of the law affecting the acquisition of land and water rights in Mexico, it is within the power of the ministry of foreign relations to refuse to sanction their titles if such refusal is deemed to be in the national interest.

It also places upon that ministry the immense responsibility of regulating in the interests of the republic the development by foreign capital of the immense sources of national wealth comprised within the term land and water rights, and in a measure regulating the investment of foreign capital in Mexico.

The court's finding, regarded as being of superlative importance to foreign interests in Mexico, especially since it is accepted as a possible indication of the bench's attitude toward foreign oil rights, came as a result of an appeal by the Bacis Gold and Silver Mining Co., Ltd., of Durango, against acts of ministry of foreign relations alleged to be in violation of Articles 14 and 27, Fraction 1, of the constitution.

The company declared that in 1896, while the Bacis river was under the jurisdiction of the Durango state government, it secured a concession to use the waters of the river in operating a power plant, and when the Bacis passed under federal jurisdiction it complied with all legal requirements to have the concession approved by the federal government. These included the waiving of the company's rights to appeal to the United States government for protection of its interests and an agreement to consider itself a Mexican corporation insofar as the water power concession was concerned.

When the foreign office refused to sanction the concession appeal was had to the Supreme Court. The court held, in effect, that: Mexican citizens, by birth or naturalization, have the 'right' to acquire land and water rights; but foreigners, under the court's interpretation of the state of mind which dominated the constituent assembly in framing Article 27, have not this 'right,' even though they comply with every legal requirement, since the article authorizes the state through the foreign office, to decide whether it is to the public interest to sanction such land and water rights as may be petitioned for by foreigners and to sanction such rights, not because of any mandatory feature of the article, but as a 'faculty, act of favor or grace.'

SAYS WORLD MARKET EFFECTS MILK PRICE

(By the Associated Press)

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 5.—An international commission with the power to fix the retail price of milk and to control in some degree its production was proposed to the World's Dairy Congress today by Dr. E. Laur, director of the Swiss Rural Union.

The price of raw milk is strongly influenced by the prices of butter, cheese and condensed milk, Dr. Laur said. These are commodities of international commerce and consequently the price of milk is influenced by the world markets. While the commerce in milk products is internationally organized, milk producers are not and as a result the price of milk in many countries does not cover the cost of production, he declared.

Urging an organization that would permit an active exchange of views on all that is of interest concerning the international marketing of milk, Dr. Laur called upon the congress to sponsor the foundation of a commission.

It is all right for Swiss cheese to be well supplied with holes but there can be a condition of too much hole and not enough cheese, said Professor R. Burri, director of the Swiss Dairy and Research Station, another speaker. He said that experiments with green fodder silage as feed for cows had failed because the cheese produced from their milk had had an excessive number of large holes, due to the peculiar fermentation caused by the silage feed.

RUTH'S PITCHING OUTDID BATTING

Bambino Does Best Work on Mound Before Hitting Spree.

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—George Herman Ruth, known to fans simply as "Babe," the outstanding star of the major leagues this season, whose bat and all-round ability contributed largely to the winning of the third pennant by the Yankees, played his first championship game with the Baltimore International League club April 22, 1914.

Baltimore played Buffalo that day. Ruth pitched, allowing six hits passing four men and striking out four. Baltimore won 6 to 0. Baltimore's second sacker was Neal Ball, the first major league player to make an unassisted triple play. Ball had made his triple killing five years before while playing with Cleveland against the Boston Red Sox.

Ruth made his first appearance in the majors on July 1, 1914, with the Boston Red Sox, as a pitcher. He twirled seven innings against Cleveland, being taken out so that Duffy Lewis could pinch hit for him. The Red Sox won, 4 to 3. Ruth getting credit for the victory. He struck out one man and passed none.

The 1916 series between the Red Sox and the Brooklyn Superbas was Ruth's first championship experience. He defeated Brooklyn 2 to 1, in 14 innings on October 9, holding the Dodgers runless for the last 13 innings. In the 1918 series between the Red Sox and Chicago Cubs, Ruth won two games. On September 5 he turned back the Cubs without a score, 1 to 0 and his runless innings' record for world's series was increased to 22. Four days later he again defeated the Cubs, 3 to 2. The brace of Chicago runs came in the eighth so that Ruth increased his runless inning record to 29.

Ruth's all-round ability as pitcher, outfielder, first baseman and wallower extraordinary had drawn him to the top of the star list, and in 1920 he became a member of the New York American League Club.

In his last season with Boston he had hit 29 home runs. In his first season in New York he swung his bat into 54 homers, a new all time mark, and in the following year increased this record to 59.

Last year, due to many days of enforced idleness, his batting averages dropped. He accounted for 35 home runs, however. All this year he has been around the top of the batting list in both leagues. He has been a flash on the bases, a great bulwark of defense in the outfield, and proved a stimulant generally to the play of the Yankees.

English Theology Schools Declare Dearth of Students

(By the Associated Press)

LONDON, Oct. 5.—According to the London newspapers, there is a grave shortage of clergy in the Church of England. Official figures disclose that there are fewer than 13,000 incumbents this year, which is 8,000 less than the number required to carry on the work of the church. The theological colleges, the newspapers say, are nearly empty.

"Our full staff should number 21,000," said Canon Partridge, secretary of the Church of England Central Board of Finance. "Taking a generation as 30 years, it follows that 700 men should be ordained every year. We have not reached that figure for 11 years. In 1918 there were only 114 ordinations."

"One of the causes of this shortage is the financial position of the professional classes from whose ranks the priesthood is usually recruited. They cannot now afford to give their sons the long and expensive training required. Another cause is the unattractiveness of the clerical profession as a career. Stipends are rarely more than $1,500 a year."

Haiti Controls Drug Traffic

(By the Associated Press)

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, Oct. 5.—The Haitian Council of State has passed a law to regulate and control the exportation, importation, possession, use or sale of narcotics, poisons and habit-forming drugs in Haiti.

The specific purpose of this legislation is to prevent the possible use of Haiti by German firms as a base for the distribution of narcotics. Previously there was no law of any description bearing on the narcotic problem and Germany, not being a signatory to the Opium Convention, was steadily increasing its imports of such substances. The passage of the act has made Haiti eligible as a signatory to this convention.

The new law is based on that which controls the use of narcotics in the United States, with certain modifications to fit local conditions.

FORMER BRITISH PREMIER STATES VIEW ON LEAGUE

Lloyd George Arrives for Tour of America; on Friendly Mission.
LEAGUE WEAKENED
Maintains Gracco-Italian War Injurious; League Operation Flayed.

(By the Associated Press.)
NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—David Lloyd-George, war premier of Great Britain, today set foot on American soil for the first time.
Unhappiness and difficulties resulting from the war have been caused by the ineffective application of the treaty of Versailles, Mr. Lloyd-George declared on his arrival in America for a tour of the United States and Canada.
"Has the Versailles treaty brought happiness and a settlement to the world?" he was asked.
"No, I do not think the trouble is with the Versailles treaty. The trouble has been how the treaty has been operated," Mr. Lloyd-George said.
The most important factor which might lead towards a settlement of conditions in Central Europe, which Mr. Lloyd-George said still were grave was the acceptance of the proposals of Secretary Hughes in his New Haven address that the situation be analyzed and adjusted by an international committee of competent statesmen and economists.

Asked whether there was any imminent danger in the Central European situation, the veteran British statesman replied:
"There is always danger in Central Europe. The situation is pretty bad, isn't it? One thing that might have been a help was the acceptance of your Mr. Secretary Hughes' proposal; it is not too late but it is pretty late."

Weakened By Wrangle
The League of Nations, Mr. Lloyd George declared, had certainly been weakened by the Gracco-Italian situation and its settlement. He refused to declare his attitude towards the Italian premier, Mussolini's, conduct in the affair.

"The League of Nations," he asserted, answering another question, "cannot be considered a going concern without the participation of the United States."
Mr. Lloyd-George did not think the Ruhr situation any more hopeful now than it had been since the French occupation. "It was difficult to make up one's mind on the status of such an important matter," he declared. However, he did think the resumption of the old relations between France and England are out of the question at the present moment. Contradictory rumors, he said, made it difficult for him to express an opinion on the possibility of a Rhineland republic.

Police reserves today broke up a parade of middle aged women carrying banners denouncing Great Britain outside the hotel where several thousand persons gathered to greet the former premier.

FRENCH DECLINE TO ACCEPT FROZEN FISH

(By the Associated Press.)
PARIS.—The French government, anxious to popularize the eating of fish, has been conducting an extensive educational campaign to this end. Much money already has been spent, but the whole thing bids fair to end in failure because of the reluctance of the people to change their ways. They are not heavy fish eaters, and the argument is now advanced that if the government recognizes this and stops its efforts it will save the unexpended portion of the propaganda allowance, something like $6,000,000 francs.
The campaign included "Fish Weeks" at Boulogne and elsewhere; exhibitions of deep sea fishing methods and the showing of films illustrating various aspects of the industry. Smart, new and efficient fishing boats were provided in place of the old picturesque craft, and extensive refrigeration plants were established to care for the catch.
The main trouble seems to be in the popular aversion to fish that has been frozen. The people are not used to them, and apparently they cannot be induced to change their point of view.

Clarke Attorneys Brand Charges of Woman as Untrue

ATLANTA, Oct. 5.—Charges that the suit of Mrs. Helen Katherine Steele filed yesterday, according to the Atlanta Journal, asks $100,000 damages from E. Y. Clarke were declared by Sidney Smith, attorney for Clarke, "to be just another of the efforts that have been made over a period of nearly two years to destroy Clarke." In a statement made public here today following publication of the story of the filing, he said that all charges made were "false."
Mrs. Steele in her petition alleged that Clarke, who formerly was head of the propagation department of the Ku Klux Klan posed as an unmarried man and promised to marry her when his business affairs would permit. She says she knew him as Ralph Clarke.

ADA WAITS GRID SEASON OPENING

East Central Tigers and Murray Aggies to Tangle Today.

Ada was undergoing the first feverish excitement period in anticipation of the opening of the college football season this afternoon at Park field when the East Central Tigers settle their first argument with Murray Aggies of Tishomingo.
Street talk gives the Murray Aggies a favorable part in the dope being circulated before the game. The team is practically the same as was pitted against the local squad last year and has the advantage of more than one year of playing infact.

The Murray Aggies came out with a favorable score against the Southeastern Savages of Durant and consequently demand greater effort on the part of the Tiger crew. The Tigers hope to surpass the showing made by the Durant squad in their game with the Aggies last Friday.

Coach Joe Milam reported all hands ready for the fray this afternoon and indicated that East Central would send its best team against the invading farmers from Tishomingo.

Milam was still dubious over several positions on the Tiger machine but indicated that practically all of his probable first string players would be used in the first tilt.

Football followers, who attend the opening tilt this afternoon at the Park field, may expect to see the stored-up pep of East Central loosed as a boon to the wearers of the orange and black. The Frogs, College pep merchants, have promised several stunts to increase the enthusiasm for on-lookers.

Ouster Proceedings of Military Heads Demands Dismissal

(By the Associated Press.)
OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 5.—Dismissal of ouster proceedings against Col. E. L. Hight and Capt. Murray Sells, military officers who recently had charges of Sheriff Sanford's office in Tulsa was asked of the state supreme court in a motion filed today by the attorney general's department, the officers having already been withdrawn, C. W. King, assistant attorney general said.
Attorneys for Sanford opposed the motion, maintaining that the "purported withdrawal does not prevent the military from centering."
The supreme court was in conference this morning and the Sanford case had not been presented, it was said.

Purnell Believed to be Hiding in Australian Town

(By the Associated Press.)
SYDNEY, Australia, Oct. 5.—Inspector Fowler, superintendent of detectives, said today that he believed "King" Benjamin Purnell of the House of David colony in Michigan, is at North Ryde, a small town near here. No instructions to take action against Purnell have been received, Fowler said.
The Sydney Truth recently gave a description of Purnell and the life at the colony near here but stated that the heads of the settlement refused to give any information of Purnell's presence or whereabouts.

Kels Pleads Guilty
(By the Associated Press.)

Breaks Betrothal To Navy Man To Elope With Dairyman's Son

(By Central Press.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. —This city of stately strutting statesmen, dignified society matrons and demure little "debbies" and sub-debs, always has prided itself on doing things as they should, be executed "in the better circles."

Weddings, for instance, always have been conducted according to Hoyle—and the ideas of the caterers and florists. Staid old fathers and proud mothers have rested easy, serene in the thought that their sons and daughters would be married "in a fitting manner."

But now uneasiness aunts these homes in the night hour. For there has come an epidemic of rapid romance—dizzy love making to be more exact—which has set all Washington agog.

Within one week six couples in each case affecting at least one prominent family in the capital, has listened to Dan Cupid, ignored mama and the caterers, and eloped.

One of the most recent of these six elopements was that of Miss Catherine Radcliffe, daughter of a prominent Welsh family and niece of Lord Glanely of London, and George Wise.

Miss Radcliffe—now Mrs. Wise, of course, was expected to be the sweetly simple bride in a brilliant wedding in the near future. According to reports, she was engaged to Lieutenant Julian Brown, U. S. Marine corps. Folk had discussed the expected nuptials and were waiting for the eventful day.

But Cupid and two others had different plans. Miss Radcliffe met George Wise, son of a Washington dairyman. Two days after she met him Wise asked her for her hand. She accepted him and before social Washington knew of their friendship the two slipped quietly away to Baltimore and were wed. Miss Radcliffe found time, however to break her engagement with Brown, it is said. Brown's friends say they knew of no engagement.

Be that as it may, the Radcliffe-Wise elopement was another shock to the already dazed capital society. lock. If this becomes a fad all the

DARING FEAT OF AIRCRAFT SHOWN

St. Louis Aerial Carnival Shows Burst of Speed of Planes.

(By the Associated Press.)
ST. LOUIS, Oct. 5.—Daring feats in the presence of thousands of spectators were performed by army, navy and civilian flyers in the second day's events of the International air races being held here.

The main events were the trophy race of the aviators' country club of Detroit for civilian pilots with eight planes, the Merchants Exchange of St. Louis trophy race for large capacity weight carrying postal planes for service entrants. Other events included demonstrations of dirigibles and airplanes, parachute jumping and balloon sailing.

Yesterday, the opening day, a speed of approximately 140 miles per hour were attained by army planes which won the prizes of the Liberty Builders trophy race.

The navy had but two planes in this event and one of them was disabled, but gave the army a stubborn fight. The maximum flight was about the same as made in the races at Detroit last year.

The RN-1, the largest blimp in the world, was on exhibition today. The concluding speed event will be the Pulitzer trophy race for especially high powered army and navy planes which will be held tomorrow, the final day of the races. A speed of almost four miles a minute is expected to be reached in this event.

SIMMONS CLAIMS EXAILED ORDER OF KLAN ORGANIZED

(By the Associated Press.)
CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Establishment of a second Ku Klux order to be known as the Knights of Kamella, who will wear no masks, has been announced here by William Joseph Simmons, emperor of the Klan, who will speak here tomorrow. Only "worthy" klansmen will be elevated to the new order, thus eliminating such undesirables as gained entrance in the old order," Mr. Simmons is quoted as saying.

EIGHT PERSONS BELIEVED INDICTED FOR CONSPIRACY

(By the Associated Press.)
CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—Eight persons are believed to be facing indictments for conspiracy which Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes charges was formed to ruin her reputation in connection with the divorce suit of her husband W. E. D. Stokes, wealthy hotel man. They are reported to have been named by the county grand jury today in a true bill charging conspiracy. The true bill is expected to be returned to court soon after being voted.

TRADES DAY EVENTS TO BE DISCONTINUED

The Retail Merchants association, at the monthly meeting Thursday evening in the basement of the Presbyterian church, decided to discontinue the trade days after tomorrow. Other plans will be held in the future, however, for going after trade in adjacent territory.

The meeting was well attended and the members were enthusiastic. Credits were discussed more fully than any other subject and plans laid for curtailing credit to unworthy individuals.

The dinner was served by the ladies of the Presbyterian church. The party also was conducted through the parsonage, which is immediately adjoining the new church building.

Plans for the trade day tomorrow call for a crowning event of the long list of trade day successes. Special prizes are being offered on many articles by various Ada merchants, and it is believed people will be here from a long distance in every direction.

STATE EXPENSES SOAR TO RECORD

Auditor Maintains Too Much Money Being Spent; Million for Month.

(By the Associated Press.)
OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 5.—Expenses of the state government in Oklahoma went over the million mark last month for the second time since the beginning of the fiscal year July 1 last, according to a statement issued today by C. C. Childers, state auditor.

September expenditures amounted to $1,128,375.51, he said.
During August the state spent $1,061,008.62. Expenditures for last month were $1,183,345.13 in excess of the same month a year ago Childers declared.

The receipts from all sources during September, 1923, reached $381,247.58 which was an increase over the month before of $1,853.96. No record of deficiency warrants is kept at his department, he explained.

"The government of Oklahoma is costing too much money," said the auditor, and state agencies must conserve their funds or we will face a bond issue as the tax levy of 3 1-2 mills for state purposes will be insufficient for the state government.

During 1908 more than 2,000 vessels entered the ports of Argentina and only four flew the American flag.

CONVICTS DEFEND PRISON FORTRESS

Prisoners Seem Assured of Defense Against Arm of Law.

(By the Associated Press.)

EDDYVILLE, Ky., Oct. 5.—The three convicts who for more than two days have defied the efforts of the executive and military departments of the state of Kentucky to dislodge them from their improvised fortress in the state penitentiary here, seemed assured of holding their position until evening according to announcement of Warden John Chilton today.

Warden Chilton said that further conferences to discuss efforts to dislodge the men would not be held until 5:30 this afternoon when the arrival of three members of the board of charities and corrections is expected.

The convicts' hiding place, was said by the warden, made it difficult for them to be dislodged. The convicts used four 90-gallon iron steam boilers in front of the building and another in the rear as a barricade and said that they were located at the only entrances of the building.

In the warden's opinion the convicts could hold out in these places and stand off a regiment if an advance were made upon them.

PRICES CLAIM TO FAME WAS THRASHING KAISEN

(By the Associated Press.)
LONDON.—The death occurred here recently of Alfred Russell Price, and passed almost unheeded, whereas it was worthy of special notice, for he succeeded in accomplishing what thousands of Americans have itched to do but could not, he gave the boy who later became German emperor, a good, sound thrashing.

It happened years ago when Wilhelm was the Crown Prince and was visiting Ilfracombe, an English seaside resort, with his tutor, Wilhelm, in a playfully destructive mood, began to throw stones at some bathing machines belonging to Mr. Price's father. He was told to stop, but took exception to this infringement of his regal rights. Young Price took off his coat and began to belabor the royal youth so successfully that he had administered a black eye and several cuts and bruises before the tutor succeeded in calling off hostilities.

Universal Studio Elephant Dies for Penalty on Temper

(By the Associated Press.)

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 5.—"Charley" prize elephant of the Universal studio, faced a "firing squad" of one man today, paying with his life for his vicious temper. He was 189 years old.

More than a month ago the great pachyderm was condemned to die after a notable career in the teak wood swamps of India, circuses and movies in America which was marked by attacks on his trainers at intervals.

All four legs were bound and Harry Lonsdale, keeper of the arsenal at the studios, fired one shot from a powerful elephant gun into Charley's body just under the shoulder. He dropped without a sound.

LOCKHART AGAIN IN HANDS OF LAW

Wanted for Several Charges in Oklahoma and Arkansas.

(By the Associated Press.)

FORT SMITH, Oct. 5.—Ed Lockhart, alleged bank bandit, is in jail at Jay, Delaware county, Oklahoma today after six weeks of evading the law of Oklahoma and Arkansas.

Lockhart was captured while sleeping in a barn on the ranch of Charles Baker six miles from Kansas, a small town in Delaware county, and with him the officers arrested I. Dodson, said to be wanted in connection with a train robbery near Bartlesville. Baker was arrested on a charge of harboring criminals.

Sheriff Ben Smith of Delaware county, who led seven officers on the raid, said today that he will hold Lockhart in the Jay jail for a day or two until he decides definitely what he will do with him. Dodson and Baker were taken to jail at Vinia.

Lockhart is wanted in Oklahoma for breaking his parole and a reward of $50 has been offered for him by the warden of the penitentiary. He is also wanted at Harrison, Arkansas, for alleged complicity in the robbery of the People's bank in February, 1921, when Henry Starr, his partner, was killed. Arkansas also wants him in connection with the robbery of the Lead Hill bank about two years ago in which the robbers escaped with approximately $19,000. A reward of $500 has been offered by the Arkansas State Bankers Association.

Lockhart's imprisonment today in the little jail at Jay is the third since Henry Starr and his companions staged the sensational robbery of the People's Bank at Harrison.

Lockhart was captured and held in the Harrison jail for three weeks when he escaped.

SWEDEN SPENDING ON CONSTRUCTION RELIEF

(By the Associated Press.)
STOCKHOLM.—The balancing of accounts at the end of the worst period of unemployment which Sweden has ever weathered shows the following debit and credit: a total public outlay of $30,000,000 to provide work for the jobless, about 1,500 miles of new and improved roads, many new bridges, new telephone lines, forty-six new athletic fields, new aviation fields, new barracks, extensive forest improvements, and reforestation and opening up of large new tracts of arable land.

This information is the result of researches made by two leading Stockholm newspapers on the occasion of reporting the lowest amount of unemployment during two and a half years, the figures now being only 20,000 as against 163,000 in February, 1922. Practically all of the large funds expended have been for constructive relief work, while steadily decreasing sums have been set aside for direct subvention. At present only about 150 persons are receiving unemployment doles.

DAVID LLOYD GEORGE TO VISIT IN UNITED STATES

(By the Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—David Lloyd-George, the dynamic little Welshman who began his career as a country lawyer and who throughout the years of the war and its aftermath ruled the destinies of Great Britain as prime minister, is to arrive on the Mauretania today on his first visit to the United States. Accompanying him are his wife and younger daughter.

LEGISLATORS OF STATE PLANNING SPECIAL SESSION

Legislative Opponents of Gov. Walton Indicate Call to be Issued.

BAR INJUNCTION

Lillard Maintains Certifying of Returns not Necessary for Special Call.

(By the Associated Press.)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 5.—It was indicated in well informed quarters today that a call for a meeting of the lower house of the state legislature was in prospect and that it would probably go out soon summoning the body for an impeachment session October 17. No statement was forthcoming from the headquarters of the legislative opponents of Gov. Walton, but members of the body unofficially let it be known that such a move might be expected.

It was indicated that the call would not be withheld pending the determination of the injunction action brought by the governor to prevent the state election board from certifying the returns from Tuesday's special election at which a constitutional amendment was approved opening the way for the legislature to investigate Gov. Walton's official acts.

Certifying Not Effective.
Ross Lillard, state senator, declared that it is not necessary for returns from an initiated election to be certified to the secretary of state in order to make the provisions of the initiated measure operative. He asserted that the law provides merely that a question must be clearly settled, before becoming effective. He cited as a precedent the action of C. N. Haskell, first governor of Oklahoma, who in 1907 placed the great seal of the state in his grip and brought it from Guthrie where the capital was located to Oklahoma City in the afternoon of the initiated election at which the question of moving the capital was being voted upon. At the hour there seemed to be no doubt that the vote would favor the removal. Haskell was assailed for his action but was sustained in the courts. Lillard said. The first governor's action "in moving the capital in his suit case" has become classic in the history of the state.

The injunction suit brought by Gov. Walton is set for next Tuesday.

SULPHUR SLATED FOR ADA HILT

Local High School Squad Leaves for Battle at Sulphur.

The Ada high school football squad will seek to establish another mark in their claims for an all-victorious season this year when they meet the Sulphur squad at Sulphur today.

Fifteen men left on the noon train to engage in the struggle, according to Coach Cox.

While the Sulphur squad has faced a loss in the only game of the season in their battle with Tishomingo last Friday, they are rated as a husky bunch of scrappers.

The Ada squad carries the prestige of a notable victory over McAlester at McAlester last Friday, their score of 17-6 being claimed as a fair barometer in judging the true merits of the team.

The lineup of the Ada eleven for the Sulphur game:
Center—Rayburn.
Right Guard—Willoughby.
Right End—Sneed.
Quarterback—Baker.
Fullback—Hargis.

The Branding Iron

Dravely she traced her quivering muscles and went on. She plunged into drifts, struggled up; sometimes the snow-plane seemed to stand up like a wall in front of her, the far hills looking like a dragon along its top. She could not keep the breath of her lungs. Often she sank down and rested; when things grew steady she got up and worked on. Each time she rested she crouched longer; each time made slower progress; and always the goal she had set herself, the end of a fitting hill, thrust itself out, nosed forward, sliding down to the plain. It began to darken, but Joan thought that her sight was failing. The enormous efforts she was making took every atom of her will. At last her muscles refused challenge, her laboring heart stopped. She stood a moment, swayed, fell, and this time she made no effort to rise. She had become a dark spot on the snow, a lifeless part of the loneliness and silence.

A small, black, energetic figure came out from among the firs and ran forward where the longest shadows pointed. It looked absurdly tiny and anxious; futile, in its pigmy haste, across the exquisite stillness. Joan, lying so still, was acquiescent; this little striving thing rebelled. It came forward steadily, following Joan's uneven tracks, stamping them down firmly to make a solid path, and as the sun dropped, leaving an immense gleaming depth of sky, he came down and beat over the black speck that was Joan.

Prosper took her by the shoulder and turned her over a little in the snow. Joan opened her eyes and looked at him. It was the dumb look of a beaten dog.

"Get up, child," he said, "and come home with me."

She struggled to her feet, he helping her; and silently, just as a savage woman, no matter what her pain, will follow her man, so Joan followed the track he made by pressing the snow down with his foot over her former steps. "Can you do it?" he asked once, and she nodded. She was pale, her eyes heavy, but she was glad to be found, glad to be saved. He saw that, and

AUTHOR REVEALS SECRET FOR HAPPY MARRIAGES

What is the secret of happiness in marriage?

Some say a comfortable home, others congenial relationship between husband and wife.

Charles G. Norris, author of "Brass," the novel adapted for the screen, thinks neither of the above accounts wholly for happy marriages.

"The secret lies," he believes, "in the struggle for it. No marriage was ever made happy without a distinct effort on the part of both husband and wife to make it so. Married happiness, in short, is not an accident, not a gift of the gods—it is a structure which two build."

That is why the married couple in "Brass" go to wreck and ruin, plunging into tragedies and unhappiness. Philip Baldwin and his wife Marjorie cease striving for mutual happiness after a while, the wife finding it in cabarets with boon companions, the husband with his friends. Before they know what's what, they are divorced.

Monte Blue has the featured part as Philip, while Marie Prevost is Marjorie. Others in the cast are Harry Myers, Vera Lewis, Irene Rich, Frank Keenan, Miss Duffont, Margaret Seldon, Helen Ferguson, Edward Jobson, Harvey Clark, Cyril he saw a dawning confusion in her eyes. At the end he drew her arm into his, and when they came into the house, he knelt and took the snow-shoes from her feet, she drooping against the wall. He put a hand on each of her shoulders and looked reproach.

"You wanted to leave me, Joan? You wanted to leave me as much as that?"

She shook her head from side to side, then, drawing away, she stumbled past him into the room, dropped to the bearskin rug, and held out her hands to the flames. "It's awful good to be back," she said, and fell to sobbing. "I didn't think you'd be caring—I was thinkin' only of old things. I was homesick—me that has no home."

Her shrunken voice was so wonderful a music that he stood listening with sudden tears in his eyes.

"An' I can't forget Pierre nor the life, Mr. Gael, an' when I think 'twas you that killed him, why, it breaks my heart. Oh, I know you had to do it. I saw. An' I couldn't 'a' stayed with him no more. What he did, it made me hate him—but you can't be thinkin' how it was with Pierre an' me before that night. We—we was happy. I used to live with my father, Mr. Gael, an' he was an awful man, an' there was no lovin' between us, but when I first seen Pierre lookin' up at me, I first knowed what lovin' might be like. I just came away with him because he asked me. Oh, Mr. Gael, I can't forget him, even for hatin'. That brand on my shoulder, it's all healed, but my heart's so hurt, it's so hurt. You killed him. Pardon me, please; I would love you if I could, but somethin' makes me shake away from you—because Pierre's dead."

Again she wept, exhausted, broken-hearted weeping it was. And Prosper's face was drawn by pity of her. That story of her life and love, it was a sort of saga, something as moving as an old ballad most beautifully sung. The varied and vibrant cadences of her voice gave every delicate shading of feeling, of thought. She was utterly expressive. All night, after he had seen her out and sent her to her bed, the phrases of her music kept repeating themselves in his ears. "An' so I first knowed what lovin' might be like," and, "I would love you, only somethin' makes me shake away from you—because Pierre's dead." This was a Joan he had not yet realized, and he knew that after all his enchanted leopardess was a woman and that his wooing of her had hardly yet begun. So did she baffle him by the utter directness of her heart. There was so little of a barrier against him and yet—there was so much.

For the first time he doubted his wizardry, and, at that, his desire for the wild girl's love stood up like a giant and gripped his soul.

Joan slept deeply, without dreams; she had confessed herself. But Prosper was as restless and troubled as a youth. She had not made her escape; she had followed him home with humility, with confusion in her eyes. She had been glad to hold out her hands again to the fire on his hearth. And yet—he was now her prisoner.

CHAPTER XIII

Nerves and Intuition.

"Mr. Gael," said Joan standing before him at the breakfast-table, "I'm a-goin' to work."

She was pale, gaunt and imperturbable. She announced this decision and sat down.

"Woman's work?" he asked her, smiling quizzically.

"No, sir, with her own rare smile; 'I ain't rightly fitted for that.'"

"Certainly not in those clothes," he murmured crossly, for she was dressed again in her own things.

"I'm a-goin' to do man's work. I'm a-goin' to shovel snow an' help fetch wood an' kerry in water. You tell your Chinese man, please."

"And you're not going to read or study any more?"

"Yes, sir. I like that. If you still want to teach me, Mr. Gael. But I'm a-goin'—I'm going to get some action. I'll just die if I don't. Why, I'm so poor I can't hardly live a broom. I don't know why I'm so miserably poor, Mr. Gael."

She twisted her brows anxiously.

"You've had a nervous breakdown."

"A what?"

"A nervous breakdown."

He lit his cigarette and watched her in his usual lazy, smoke-veiled manner, but she might have noticed the shaken fabric of his self-assurance.

"Say, now," said Joan, "what's the name for?"

"There's a book about it over there—third volume on the top shelf—look up your case."

With an air of profound alarm she went over and took it out.

"There's books about everything, ain't there?—Isn't there—Mr. Gael? Why, there's books about lovin' an' sickness an' about cattle an' what-not, an' about women an' children—"

She was striking the knowledge of her "case," but at last she pressed her lips together and opened the book.

She fell to reading; growing anxiety possessed her face; she sat down on the nearest chair; she turned page after page. Suddenly she gave him a look of anger.

"I ain't none of this, Mr. Gael," she said, smote the page, rose with dignity, and returned the book.

He laughed so long and heartily that she was at last forced to join him. "You was—you were—jobbin' me, wasn't you?" she said, sighing relief. "Did you know what that volume said? It said like this—I'll read you about it—"

She took the volume, found the place and read in a low tone of horror, he helping her with the hard words: "One of the most frequent forms of phobia, common in cases of psychic neurasthenia, is agoraphobia in which patients the moment they come into an open space are oppressed by an exaggerated feeling of anxiety. They may break into a profuse perspiration and assert that they feel as if chained to the ground. . . . And here, listen to this, 'atrophobia, the fear that high things will fall; atrophobia, fear of thunder and lightning; pantophobia, the fear of everything and everyone' . . . Well, now, ain't that too awful? An' you mean folks really get that way?"

Their talk was for some time of nervous diseases, Joan's horror increasing.

"Well, sir," said she, "lead me out an' shoot me if I get anyways like that! I believe it's caused by all that queer dressin' an' what-not. I feel like somethin' real today in this shirt an' all, an' when I get through some work I'll feel a whole lot better. Don't you say I'm one of those nervous breakdowns again, though, will you?" she pleaded.

"No, I won't, Joan. But don't make one of me, will you?"

"How's that?"

"By wearin' those clothes all day and half the night. If you expect me to teach you, you'll have to do somethin' for me, to make up for runnin' away. You might put on pretty things for dinner, don't you think? Your nervous system could stand that?"

"My nervous system," drawled Joan, and added startlingly, for she did not often swear, "G—d!" It was an oath of scorn, and again Prosper laughed.

But he heard with a sort of terror the sound of her "man's work," to which she energetically applied herself. It meant the return of her strength, of her independence. It meant the shortening of her captivity. Before long spring would rush up the canyon in a wave of melting snow, crested with dazzling green, and the valley would lie open to Joan. She would go unless—had he really failed so utterly to touch her heart?

Was she without passion, this woman with the deep, savage eyes, the lips, so sensuous and pure, the body so magnificently made for living? She was not defended by any training, she had no moral standards, no prejudices, none of the "ideals." She was completely open to approach, a savage. If he failed, it was a personal failure. Perhaps he had been too subtle, too restrained. She did not yet know, perhaps, what he desired of her. But he was afraid of rousing her hatred, which would be fully as simple and as savage as her love.

That evening, after she had dressed to please him, and sat in her chair, tired, but with the beautiful, clean look of outdoor weariness on her face, and tried, battling with drowsiness, to give her mind to his reading and his talk, he came to her and knelt down, drawing down her hands to him, pressing his forehead on them.

For a moment she was stiff and still, then, "What is it, Mr. Gael?" she asked in a frightened half-voice.

He felt, through her body, the slight recoil of spirit, and drew away, and arose to his feet.

"You're angry?"

"He laughed.

"Oh, no. I'm not angry; why should I be? I'm a superman. I'm made—let's say—of alabaster. Women with great eyes and wonderful voices and the beauty of broad-browed nymphs walking gravely down under forest arches, such women give me only a great, great longing to read aloud very slowly and carefully a 'Child's History of the English Race'!"

He took the book, tossed it across the room, then stood, ashamed and defiant, laughing a little, a boy in disgrace.

Joan looked at him in profound bewilderment and dawning distress.

"Now," she said, "you are angry with me. You always are when you talk that queer way. Won't you please explain it to me, Mr. Gael?"

"No!" said he sharply. "I won't." And he added after a moment, "You'd better go to bed. You're sleepy and as stupid as an owl."

"Oh!"

"Yes. And you've destroyed what little superstitious belief I had left concerning something they tell little ignorant boys about a woman's intuition. You haven't got a bit. You're stupid and I'm tired of you—No, Joan, I'm not. Don't mind me. I'm only in fun. Please! D—n! I've hurt your feelings."

Her lips were quivering, her eyes full. "I try so awful hard," she said. It was a lovely, broken trail of music.

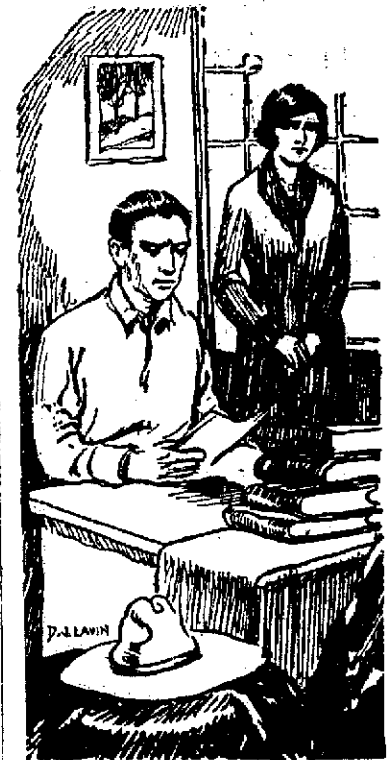

"Dear child! Joan, don't you ever think of me?"

"Yes, yes; all the while I'm thinking of you. I wish I could do more for you. Why do I make you so angry? I know I'm awful—awfully stupid and ignorant—I—I must drive you most crazy, but truly—here she turned quickly in his arm and put her hands about his neck and held her cheek against his shoulder. "Truly, Mr. Gael, I'm awful fond of you." Then she drew quickly away, quivered back into the other corner of her great chair, put her face to her hands. "Only—I can't help seel'n—Pierre."

Just her tone showed him that still and ghostly youth, and again he saw the brown hand that moved. He had stood between her and that sight. The man ought to have died. He did not deserve his life nor this love of hers. Even though he had failed to kill the man, he would not fail to kill her love for him, sooner or later, thought Prosper. If only the hateful spring would give him time. He must move her from her memory. She had put her hands about his neck, she had laid her head against his shoulder, and if it had been the action of a child, then she would not have started from him with that sharp memory of Pierre.

Joan had made her plans. She would wait till spring, partly to get back her full strength, partly to make further progress in her studies, but mostly in order not to hurt this hospitable Prosper Gael. The naïveté of her gratitude, of her delicate consideration for his feelings, which continually triumphed over an instinctive fear, would have filled him with amusement, perhaps with compunction, had he been capable of understanding them. She was truly sorry that she had hurt him by running away. She told herself she would not do that again. In the spring she would make him a speech of thankfulness and of farewell, and then she would tramp back to Pierre's homestead and win and hold Pierre's land. As yet, you see, Prosper entered very little into her conscious life. Somewhere, far down in her, there was a disturbance, a growing doubt, a something vague and troubling.

Joan had not learnt to probe her own heart. A sensation was not, or it was. She was puzzled by the feeling Prosper was beginning to cause her, a feeling of miserable complexity; but she was not yet mentally equipped for the confronting of complexity. It was necessary for an emotion to rush at Joan and throw down, as it were, her heart before she recognized it; even then she might not give it a name. She would act, however, and with violence.

So now she planned and worked and grew beautiful with work and planning, while Prosper worked, too, and his instruments were delicate and deadly and his plans made no account of hers. He worked on her subconsciousness, undermining her path, and at nights and in her sleep she grew aware of him.

But even now, in his cool and passionate heart there were moments of reaction, one at last that came near to wrecking his purpose.

"Your clothes are about done for, Joan," Prosper laughed one morning, watching her belt in her tattered shirt; you'll soon look like Cophetua's beggar maid."

"I'm not quite barefoot yet." She held up a cracked boot.

"I was going to tell you that there are a skirt and a sort of coat in—in a closet in the hall. Do you want to use them?"

She went out to look. In five minutes he heard her laugh, and, still laughing, she opened the door again.

"Oh, Mr. Gael, were you really thinking that I could wear these? Look."

He turned and looked at her. She had crowned her strong, little frame into a brown tweed suit, a world too narrow for her, and she was laughing to show him the misfit.

"These things, Mr. Gael," she said—"they must have been made for a tall child."

Prosper had too far tempted his pain, and in her vivid phrase it came to life before him. She had painted a startling picture and he had seen that suit, so small and trim, before.

Joan saw his face grow white, his eyes stared through her. He drew a quick breath and winced away from her, hiding his face in his hands. A moment later he was weeping convulsively, with violence, his head down between his hands. Joan started toward him, but he made a wicked and repellent gesture. She fled into her room and sat, bewildered, on her bed.

All at once the question came to her: for whom had the delicate fabrics been bought, for whom had this suit been made? "It was his wife and she is dead," thought Joan, and very pitifully she took off the suit, laid it and the other things away, and sitting by the window rested her chin in her hands and stared out through the blue pines. Tears ran down her face because she was so sorry for Prosper's pain. And again, thought Joan, she had caused it, she who owed him everything. Yes, she was deeply sorry for Prosper, deeply; her whole heart was stirred. For the first time she had a longing to comfort him with her hands.

For all that day Prosper fled the house and went across the country, now fording a flood of melted snow, now floundering through a drift, now walking on springy sod, unaware of the soft spring, conscious only of a sort of fire in his breast. He suffered and he resented his suffering, and he would have killed his heart if, by no doing, he could have given it peace. And all day he did not once think of Joan, but only of the "tall child" for whom the gay canyon refuge had been built, but who had never set her slim foot upon the threshold. Sunset found him miles away in the foothills of a low, many-folded range across the plain. He was dog tired, so that for very exhaustion his brain had stopped its tormenting work. He lit a fire and sat by it, huddled in his coat, smoking, dozing, not able really to sleep for cold and hunger. Prosper hated the night and its beautiful desolation, he hated the God that had made this land. He cursed the dawn when it came delicately, spreading a green arc of radiance across the east. And then, as he arose stiffly, stamped on his fire and started slowly on his way back, he was conscious of a passionate homesickness, not for the old life he had lost, but for his cabin, his bright hearth, his shut-in solitude, his Joan. Very dear and real and human she was, and her laughter had been sweet. And she must be anxious about him. She would have sat up by the fire all night. His eagerness for her slightest comfort gave his lagging steps a certain vigor, the long walk back seemed very long indeed. Noon was hot, but he found water, and by sundown he came to the canyon trail. He wanted Joan as badly now as a hurt child wants its mother. He came, haggard and breathless, to the door, called "Joan," came into the warm little room and found it empty. When Ho, to be sure, pattered to meet him.

"Mister Gael been gone a long time, velly long, all night. Wen Ho, he fix bed; fix breakfast—oh, the Indy? She gone out yestiddy, not come back. She leave a letter for him, there on the table."

Prosper took it, waved Wen Ho out, and, dropping into the big chair, opened the paper. There was Joan's big handwriting, that he himself had taught her. Before, she could only sign her name.

CHICAGO SHORT ON BABIES, INDICATED

(By the Associated Press)

CHICAGO, Oct. 5.—With a steadily declining birth rate, Chicago is "short," 6,647 babies since 1916, according to statistics issued by the Infant Welfare Society of Chicago.

In 1916, when the population of the city was only 2,517, 172, 56, 147 babies were born. In 1922, when the population figure was placed at 2,830,000, only 56,724 babies were born. The rate during those years had fallen from 22.4 a thousand to 20.02. Using these figures as a basis, Orlo F. King, Extension Secretary of the Infant Welfare Society declared that Chicago is short 6,647 babies.

"The falling of the birth rate," said Mr. King, "is forcibly driving home to the public spirited citizens of Chicago the increasing necessity of guarding the human life that is given us each year even more zealously than in the past. It is all the more important that we exert every possible means to preserve the infant lives in this community when we believe, and with good reason that the birth rate will continue to drop as it has since 1898."

Statistics of the Society show that last year, when it cared for approximately 12,000 babies, an actual saving of 480 lives was credited to the Society because the death rate among babies under 2 years of age card for at these stations was only 14 a thousand, while throughout the city generally it was four times as great.

GERMANS AGAIN WILLING TO DRINK FRENCH WINES

(By the Associated Press)

BERLIN.—There is reason to believe that "passive resistance," unless constantly fed with new fuel to keep it alive, will, in the course of time, die a natural death.

Such seems to be the case in Berlin.

French wines, which were boycotted after the occupation of the Ruhr last January, now are offered in whispers to known patrons at some of the first class Berlin hotels, and are displayed in show windows of downtown wine stores. Even French cognac is served, provided it is asked for quietly, at many of the bars patronized by foreigners.

The sign "No French or Belgians served here," which appeared like magic over all Berlin almost as soon as the French troops set foot in Essen, have disappeared from most first class cafes and restaurants. They are, however, still displayed prominently at many of the shops in the suburbs and in the beer halls where the patrons are chiefly Germans.

DEMOCRATS PLANS NAME DELEGATES

Seventeen States to Elect Representatives for National Meet.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—Democrat in 17 states will select their delegates to the national convention next year by direct vote in a series of primaries beginning in March.

A tabulation of the dates of these primaries has been made public by the Democratic National Committee.

In many cases they coincide with the dates on which the voters will express their preference among presidential candidates, although in some states electing delegates directly there will be no preferential vote for president, the delegations being left either instructed by state convention or left uninstructed.

In many cases, too, Democratic and Republican voters will go to the polls to elect their delegates on the same day. The list of republican primaries, however, has not been completed by headquarters of the Republican National Committee.

The democratic list follows:

Alabama May 13

California May 6

Florida June 3

Illinois (district delegates only) April 8

Massachusetts April 29

Montana May 27

Nebraska April 15

New Hampshire March 11

New Jersey April 22

New York April 1

North Dakota March 18

Ohio April 29

Oregon May 16

Pennsylvania May 20

South Dakota (meeting Dec. 4, 1923, to propose delegates) March 18

West Virginia May 27

Wisconsin April 1

In Louisiana the method of selecting delegates chosen in district convention is left to the state committee; the usual custom is to call a state convention for the purpose. Other states in which selection of delegates is left to state committees are Arizona, Arkansas and Washington.

In practically all states in which conventions are called to select delegates, the convention dates are set by the state committees. At the Illinois, New York and North Carolina conventions delegates-at-large only are selected; in Maryland the convention follows the presidential preferential primary of May 5; in Michigan the date is usually about May 15; in Nevada the platform convention is held June 24; district delegates are chosen in district conventions in North Carolina; the South Carolina convention is usually some time in May. In only one state is the convention date fixed.

THE BERRY PATCH

By FANNY RICHARDSON

THE age of eighteen one should be blissfully happy, even in a stuffy town—especially when one is the proud possessor of two boxes of chocolates, roses and four magazines. But Isbell's usually smiling mouth was puckered into an unhappy little twist. The ticket she had put in her glove read "Lesterville," where, isolated from suitors, theaters, dances and good times, she was expected to spend an eventful vacation away from the city with her aunt, who was to strictly see to it that she did nothing else but eat good food, fresh from the farm, and rest.

Perfectly ridiculous, wasn't it, that such an attractive girl as Isbell, with absolutely nothing to matter with her, should be made to spend her vacation in such a place? Her aunt had said there were no young people in the neighborhood. Isbell laughed as she recollected. Who ever heard of a neighborhood without young people?

However, her aunt was true to her word. After Isbell had stayed four days in Lesterville she had not seen anyone her own age except the tawny-haired, freckle-faced farmhand. Isbell, craving companionship, thought the boy "better than nothing," and they spent many a half-hour together.

When Isbell had been a week in Lesterville she heard there was going to be a costume party in the village. Her freckle-faced friend told her of it. She began making plans for it, having made up her mind she was going.

Arriving conspicuously late at the party, there was nothing for them to do but watch the games which were in progress on lantern-bedecked lawns. A young man dressed as Captain Kidd, evidently their host, offered Isbell his place in a game of croquet. "But I don't know how," she had objected. Tom, at their host's suggestion, eagerly took his mallet and joined in the game.

"I'm sorry you don't play," said the host, "but there are six or seven other games you could join. They're dancing the Virginia Reel in the barn. Come, let's do that."

Smiling, Isbell took his arm. "It's quite a while since I've done it, but I'll try."

And a few moments later Isbell was "doing it." She little knew what a gay picture she made in her Egyptian costume, dancing in and out, clapping and bowing to her unknown escort, whose fiercely grotesque costume seemed to enhance the beauty of his little partner's outfit.

"Let's play it," said Captain Kidd, after the dancing was over.

Then followed a period of explanations. In spite of the fact that Isbell knew very few of the games, she found her host more than eager to explain. He took her to this group and that group, introduced her, but never once let any of the other men be her partner.

Sombody tugged at her dress. It was Tom. "Hurry, we got to go now, or we'll get caught. The thing's 'most over!"

Dismayed, Isbell looked at her sandalless feet. "I can't, Tom, until he finds my sandal."

"We can't wait," he said. "Come with me now—easy, this way—so they won't notice."

It was ten o'clock, the day after the party. Isbell was getting ready to go blueberrying. In a sunbonnet, hardly to be recognized as the dazzling Egyptian princess of the night before, yet certainly as desirable, she was soon walking in a thicket of berry bushes. From time to time she wondered how she had been able, as she recalled last night's experiences, to get home ahead of her aunt, hustle under the bedclothes still in her costume, and wear the innocent expression she had worn when her aunt had opened her door to see if all was well.

For an hour Isbell picked, humming snatches of a gay little tune. Then there had been a slight rustling in the bushes, a screen from Isbell, and the berries had been scattered in a hundred directions. Then she had run and run. A young man was coming toward her. Instinctively he held out his arms and she ran right into them.

Absurd, isn't it, to try and work against fate? How hard Isbell's aunt had worked to keep her niece away from parties and excitement. And she had only to send her niece out to a blueberry patch where there wasn't supposed to be a soul around for miles, and a young man dropped right out of the clouds at her feet.

It was Captain Kidd who carried Isbell back to the road. He took a long time about it, going around a longer way than necessary. "You say you only saw his horns?" he asked.

"Yes. But I don't think I'll ever be able to go berrying again."

He looked down at the pale face. "He wouldn't hurt you. He probably ran faster than you did."

"When we get to the road, I'm going to give you your slipper."

"You have just my slipper!" she cried. "Why, it's just like the Cinderella fairy tale, isn't it?"

"My, but we're taking a long time getting to the road. Why, you've taken me around the longest way. Naughty prince! Just for that, I'm going to make you carry me right up to the house. Auntie will have a fit!" And humbly did have a fit, but she might just as well have saved her strength.

Baseball's New Triple Treat
Man Is New George H. Ruth

Babe Ruth waiting out the pitcher, singling and "murdering the ball" for a homer.

By NORMAN E. BROWN

Babe Ruth is giving the field a merry run for home run honors this season. But he isn't confining his efforts to leading the pack.

Ruth apparently has his heart set on doing more than that—He is aiming to lead the big leagues in all-around playing. Recognized mainly as a slugger supreme for the last few years, he has become one of the most versatile batters in either circuit. A veritable triple threat man is the once ball-murderer par excellence.

Ruth's triple-threat ability has been playing a more important part in the steady winning of the New York Yankees than his home run cleaving. The opposition pitchers and players are awake to the fact that he can drive the ball over the wall when the right one comes but that he is just as dangerous when he isn't picking one to kill. He can beat out a bunt with alacrity or wait out a wobbling pitcher with the keen eye of a Jack Graney or a Donnie Bush.

In addition to this versatility at bat he has craved from the minds of the hurlers the belief that he is a slow man on the bases. He has held his own in stealing bases. His stealing record is better than the averages indicate when it is considered that many of the times he gets on base his long driver for extra bases or the slugging have eliminated any chance of or need for stealing.

While his wicked bat causes managers to order him passed purposely frequently he has drawn many passes this season through his ability to pick the ones that are "just outside," high or low.

To this versatility must be added the fact that Ruth, for the first time since he climbed to fame, is putting his whole heart and soul into his play. On the base, and even on the bench. There is no doubt but what Ruth is a valuable member of Huggins' board of strategy this year.

All in all Ruth is making a real bid for the honor of being the most valuable man to his club in the big show. The gentry who pick that man each fall might do worse than choose the Babe.

The Forum
of the PressAn Outstanding Jew.
(Oklahoma Democrat)

A few days ago a double funeral was held in the Presbyterian church at Muskogee over the remains of Alexander Sondheimer and wife. The couple were killed in an automobile accident in France. Mr. and Mrs. Sondheimer, who were about 50 years old at the time of their death, were raised in Muskogee and had lived there all their lives. Before leaving for France, they made their wills which were identical. The will of Mr. Sondheimer, who lived a day longer than his wife, had been probated. The couple had no children. After leaving requests to some near relatives, provision was made for placing the remainder of the estate in a trust fund for a period of 25 years, at the end of which time 30 percent is to go to the Y. M. C. A. of Muskogee; 30 percent to the Y. W. C. A.; 10 percent to the United Charities to be used for the day nursery and the old folks home; 10 percent to the Beth Abrahim Jewish congregation; 10 percent to the Boy Scouts and 10 percent to the Presbyterian church. Mr. Sondheimer was a Jew, his wife a Presbyterian. During all the years of their married life, he had contributed an equal amount to the Presbyterian church and the Jewish congregation.

When Mr. Sondheimer made his will his thought was for his city and he left his money to be spent for the things which build up citizenship and character. There was no bigotry about this man. He had no narrow ideas as to creed. He believed in his fellowmen and did not question his religious affiliations and in his last will and testament, he left his large fortune, which when distributed, will amount to a half million, to institutions largely under the control of persons who did not agree with him on the matter of religion.

One editor says that he was a great Jew, but we think it much more appropriate to say that he was a great citizen of the commonwealth of Oklahoma. His beliefs in the brotherhood of man were not circumscribed by the boundaries of his church.

Reid Film Genuine Entertainment. While statesmen falter in their efforts to bring the dope menace to an irreducible minimum, and reform bodies appoint investigating committees to do lots and lots of talking, a moving picture appears on the screens of the country's leading theatres, which places squarely before the eyes of the world a truthful presentation of the facts. It is coming to the American Theatre Monday.

Because it is authentic in every detail, because it is masterfully handled by writer, director and company, and because it is made by a woman whose chiefest motive in making it was an unselfish one, the picture should be the most convincing preaching ever delivered on the subject, according to critics.

"Human Wreckage" is not a story of Wallace Reid's own life though it is his spirit which actuated the production of this, the greatest moral play ever conceived. The story itself was constructed, not for the purpose of reproducing the life of any individual, but was rather planned to put over forcefully as many salient truths as could be packed into a compact film, without incurring its value as entertainment.

The play is entertaining, not in a light, frothy sort of way, to be sure, but in its power to absorb, to move, to touch. It has been found, in the so-called "film magazines," in which the realms of science and modern thought are pictorially explored, that people are most entertained when they see a picture from which they gather new information. On this principle, then, "Human Wreckage" should be extremely entertaining, for it does instruct. The facts which it presents have been gathered by experts in many lines of endeavor—Medical, political and social.

The cast includes Mrs. Wallace Reid, James Kirkwood, Bessie Love, George Hackathorne, Harry Northrup, Eric Mayne, Victory Bateman, Robert McKim, Claire McDowell, Lucille Ricksen, Otto Hoffman, Philip Sleeman and George Clark.

GERMANY'S COMEBACK AT SEA
ALARMS HER COMPETITORS

(By the Associated Press)
COPENHAGEN.—German ship-building is showing remarkable recuperative power, so much so that other maritime states are today concerned lest this "dreadful competitor" soon will regain her old position. The quotation is from the Scandinavian Shipping Gazette, which publishes an article on the subject.

In 1920 Germany had 420,000 gross tons of steamers and motorships, according to this authority, and in June of 1923 a total of 2,510,000 tons.

"Bitter complaints are made against the resumption of the German competition in practically all waters, but perhaps principally in South American seas," the Gazette says in conclusion.

DAIRY CONGRESS TO HOLD SESSION

Finest of America's Stock to be Assembled at Convention.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 4.—A comprehensive cross-section of the dairy industry, the great branch of agriculture, will be shown in this city October 5, when the National Dairy show and World's Dairy congress convene.

Emphasis will be placed on the tremendous part the industry plays in national prosperity and welfare; on its economic importance in bringing $2,400,000,000 to the dairy farms of the country annually and a greater stability to agriculture, and on productive methods of still further increasing the industry's stability and prosperity.

The exposition will bring together more than 1,500 of the United States and Canada's finest dairy cattle; machinery and equipment for dairy farms and dairy factory valued at $3,000,000; 300 of the country's finest horses; the latest scientific facts and discoveries in the relation of milk and its products to human welfare; and scores of educational exhibits for the study of farmers in betterment of their farms.

Distinguished scientists and research specialists, delegates from 40 foreign countries, will deliver addresses dealing with improvement and greater efficiency in farm production, manufacture of dairy products, transportation and marketing. Another important phase taken up in detail will be the vital and essential part played by milk in the welfare of mankind.

Recent discoveries have established the fact that milk is a certain quality which makes it a necessary and complete food for humans. It is known to be especially essential for the young, in adequate development of both brain and body.

Among the delegates will be Dr. Hugh C. Cummings, Lecturer of National Professor, Sato and A. Mikawa, Hokkaido Imperial University, Japan; Senator P. S. Latour, Minister of Guatemala; Abdullah Entezam, secretary of the Persian legation at Washington; C. Holmes Dennis, Royal college for Science, Ireland; Haakon, (Swedish), Royal Agricultural college, Norway; Robert Burri, director of the Lieberfeld Experiment station, Switzerland.

Four special trains will bring the delegates and visitors from Washington where the congress will be formally opened by President Coolidge.

A total of 1,329 dairy cattle entered at the exposition will show the highest perfection to which breeders and scientists have arrived in this country and Canada in seeking perfection of type and conformation for the economical production of milk.

duction of milk. In the number, will be several world's champions, big ribbon winners from every state, splendid specimens of the five leading dairy breeds, Holstein, Ayrshire, Jersey, Guernsey and Brown Swiss, which will demonstrate to visitors what points should be sought in breeding for heavier production.

Every division of the exposition has been designed to inspire dairy farmers to practice more economical and resourceful methods. Great emphasis will be placed on better breeding; its necessity is indicated by the fact that the average production of milk per cow in the United States is only a little more than 4,000 pounds a year, when it has been established there is seldom profit made with cows yielding less than 5,000 pounds a year.

Something like 20,000 original kinds of orchids are known to exist, and from each of them is many as 3,000 crossed varieties have been reared.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

PRAYER IN THE MORNING:—My voice shalt thou hear in the morning, O Lord; in the morning will I direct my prayer unto thee, and will look up.—Psalms 5:3.

"THE PUBLIC BE DAMNED" POLICY.

That our state legislators are underpaid there is no doubt. That we would get more competent representatives by paying more, is questionable.

In a speech before the Rotary Club at Dallas, September 19th, Congressman Hatton W. Summers said:

"We are turning the Government over to a group of cracked-brain agitators because we are too lazy and indifferent to investigate and understand our Government."

Organized groups, cracked-brain agitators or groups whose purpose is purely selfish too often succeed in electing and controlling future actions of officials, National and State, or local, and would continue doing so regardless of the per diem fees or salary these officials are paid.

Less than half the eligible voters go to the polls, even at important elections. It thus becomes an easy matter for an organized group, with every member working persistently, to corral enough votes to elect the candidate endorsed by them, even if it becomes necessary to use bribes or misrepresentation to defeat a candidate who cannot be dominated by them.

Usually, because of these conditions, candidates for office, politicians who consider the emoluments of office above the welfare of the majority, tumble over each other in their haste to join and secure the support of the dominating group.

Competent, honest, constructive men who would, even at a serious sacrifice to their personal interest, offer for office, with a desire to serve conscientiously and efficiently, realize the futility of placing themselves in a position where, regardless of the fact that their past reputation may be spotless, they will be lied about, misrepresented and every other unfair means adopted by the unscrupulous to defeat them. Less than half the eligible voters exercise their franchise; therefore, the high class, honorable man has mighty little chance of defeating the candidate of the organized group. These minority groups depend upon the certain, loyal support, personal and financial, of every member, while those not members of any organized group and only interested in competent, reliable men for office, remain at home on election day. Until those who should, take more active interest in government we will continue to have men put in office, as now, to serve the selfish purpose of organized groups.

We get the kind of government we permit the groups and politicians to give us and if we are satisfied there will be no change. There is no denying the fact that a majority of the offices, from bottom to top, are filled by men under the influence of organized groups and this condition will continue to be maintained until qualified voters take a greater interest in good government. It is a case of "the public be damned"—let it pay the taxes and howl.—Farm and Ranch.

In recent years foreign immigration has had the effect of making most of the larger cities centers of European population. It is said that only about 25 per cent of the population of Chicago is pure American stock, that is to say the bulk of the population is either foreign born or of foreign born parentage. Boston and New York are about the same as Chicago in this respect and many other sections of various states are peopled by foreigners. The percentage of old American stock is larger in the South than elsewhere since immigrants have not come here in such great numbers as they have in other sections. North Carolina has the smallest foreign population of any state in the Union. With a general mixture of nationalities in such places as Chicago it is impossible to forecast the future of American ideals. At all events they are likely to undergo some change and rapid change at that. As long as native American stock is in the majority the foreign element is more likely to become Americanized quickly, but where Americans are so much in the minority it is difficult to see how the overwhelming majority of foreign born could be assimilated readily. Under such conditions we may expect repetition of the action of the legislature of Wisconsin a year or two ago in voting down a bill to make the teaching of the constitution of the United States compulsory in the public schools because such teaching might offend the sensibilities of some of the foreign population.

Henry Ford's paper devotes some space in its last issue trying to prove that Christ was not a Jew. This appears to us very much like a useless waste of time and space. It is not his nationality but his teachings that are important. The same applies to all other men. Some very sorry specimens boast of their illustrious family trees but we of America care little for that. What is wanted is a man of character and ability. We are interested in what a man does and not what his ancestors did some centuries ago. The cackling of a flock of geese saved Rome but that did not give their descendants any reason to escape the pot.

The delinquent tax list of Okmulgee county takes up 18 pages of the space in the Okmulgee Democrat. Looks like the people up there have about quit paying taxes.

THIS MIGHT ACCOUNT FOR THE RECENT CATASTROPHES AND UPHEAVALS OF NATURE

Many Brilliant Feats Of Baseball in Series Of Generation Of Past

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—While unusual pitching performances have been frequent in world's series baseball, the annual struggle for the championship never has known a no-hit game. The nearest to a perfect performance was pitched by Ed Reulbach of the Chicago Cubs against the Chicago White Sox in the series of 1906.

Reulbach was found for only one safety in that game, the famed "Jiggs" Donohue blurring the record with a clean single. Reulbach walked six men, however, and fanned three.

Five two-hit games are on record. Ed Walsh pitching for the White Sox against the Cubs in the same series that brought one-hit fame to Reulbach, allowed but two safe swats and won his game, 3 to 0. Still another great pitching feat was accomplished in that series when Mordecai Brown, of the Cubs, held the Sox to two blows the day after Walsh's fine game. Brown won his game 1 to 0.

In 1913 Ed Plank, of Connie Mack's great Athletics, held the Giants to two singles and won, 3 to 1. In 1914 Bill James, of the "Miracle" team of Boston Braves, held the Athletics to two hits and shut them out, 1 to 0. Waite Hoyt, the youthful star of the New York Yankees, was found for but two hits by the Giants in the 1921 series and won, 3 to 0.

Jack Coombs, of the Athletics, hurled the best three-hit games in a world series when on October 27, 1911, he defeated Christy Mathewson and the Giants, 3 to 2 in 11 innings. Coombs won five world's series games in his career and never was beaten, although one game of which he twirled a part went against the team. He won four games for the Athletics and later, one for Brooklyn.

Coombs' great record follows: October 18, 1910—pitching for Athletics against Mordecai Brown, Chicago Cubs; won 9 to 3, allowing seven hits, striking out five men and passing nine.

October 20, 1910—pitching for Athletics against Ed Reulbach, Chicago Cubs; won 12 to 5, allowing six hits, striking out eight men and passing four.

Oct. 23, 1910—pitching for Athletics against Brown, Cubs; won 7 to 2, allowing nine hits, striking out seven men and passing one.

October 17, 1911—pitch for Athletics against Christy Mathewson, New York Giants; won 3 to 2, in eleven innings, allowing three hits, striking out seven men and passing four.

October 10, 1916—pitching for Brooklyn against Carl Mays, Boston Red Sox; won 4 to 3, allowing seven hits in six and one-third innings, striking out one man and passing one.

In 1911 against the Giants Coombs slightly injured himself and was forced to retire in the tenth inning with the score tied. Plank, who finished the game, lost it 4 to 3.

By his work in the 1910 series Coombs became one of the four pitchers to win three games in one world's series.

In 1905 Christy Mathewson won three games for the Giants against the Athletics, all of them shut-outs; in 1909 Charles "Babe" Adams won three for Pittsburgh against Detroit; and in 1920 Stanley Coveleskie, of Cleveland, won three games from Brooklyn.

Young Waite Hoyt's pitching in the 1921 series for the Yankees against the Giants is recorded among the best. Hoyt won two of the three games he pitched. He allowed 18 base hits, two runs, struck out 18 men and passed eleven.

Last fall Jack Scott was the pitching hero of the world's series. The veteran Giant twirled capped his brilliant comeback by holding the Yankees to four hits in the third game and blanking them, 2 to 0.

HUSBAND OF FORMER ADA GIRL DIES AT DUMRIGHT

The following is taken from the Dumright Derrick of Sept. 29.

SOVIETS SEEKING RECOGNITION NOW

Moscow and Prague Heading Intensive Campaign for Reinstatement.

(By the Associated Press)
BELGRADE.—Intensive efforts are being made by the Soviet government at Moscow, both here and in Prague, to obtain recognition by Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia as an entering wedge to worldwide recognition.

The first recognition by any European power was expected from the Stamboulisky regime, in Bulgaria. The Soviet agents in that country were in close relations with the late Stamboulisky government. It is an open secret there that only Stamboulisky's fears of complications with Great Britain and France stood between him and the carrying out of his desire to exchange diplomatic representatives with Soviet Russia.

The fall of Stamboulisky made it necessary to change the field of endeavor to Belgrade and Prague.

cates are finding a strong popular response, especially in Czechoslovakia, where the anti-German feeling still exists.

In Yugoslavia Soviet purposes have been accompanied by activities in the form of espionage. The latest incident is the one in which the Russian Colonel Loika figured prominently.

Loika arrived in Belgrade from Russia about two years ago, represented himself as a Czarist officer fleeing from Soviet persecution. His story, supported by documents, was credited by the war office; he received a colonel's commission, and was attached to the aviation arm. Here he availed himself of every opportunity to collect military information.

But when the anti-Bolshevist Russian colony recently discovered his true character as a Soviet agent, orders were issued for the colonel's arrest. Before they could be carried out, however, he took to the air in one of the planes attached to his command, and when last seen was headed in the direction of Russia. The incident has produced a painful impression here.

Vigorous Old Age

WHY separate youth and old age with a deep and ever-widening abyss?

The bloom of youth and the hardy, ruddy glow of Old Age—sixteen and sixty—should be separated only by the span of years and not by varying differences of physical wholesomeness.

Vigorous old age is within the grasp of all. S. S. S. brings that hale and hearty feeling back with a rush. Rich red blood is the greatest enemy of weakening, health undermining Old Age. S. S. S. builds Red Blood Cells. Rich, red blood coursing through your veins sweeps away impurities that retard the proper functioning of your system. Old Age—once a dreaded agony becomes a vigorous, enjoyable, care free time of life.

S. S. S. is made of carefully selected herbs and barks—scientifically prepared and proportioned. Welcome Old Age when it comes. Be ready to withstand the attacks of diseases that follow in its wake. Meet Old Age with a hearty handshake. A handshake that speaks of well being of a vigorous, clear thinking, red blooded constitution. S. S. S. is your best friend when Old Age is seen rounding the corner. Get a bottle and drive care and worry away. All leading drug stores carry it. The large size is the more economical.

SAYS WORLD MARKET EFFECTS MILK PRICE

(By the Associated Press)
SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 5.—An international commission with the power to fix the retail price of milk and to control in some degree its production was proposed to the World's Dairy Congress today by Dr. E. Laur, director of the Swiss Rural Union.

The price of raw milk is strongly influenced by the price of butter, cheese and condensed milk, Dr. Laur said. These are commodities of international commerce and consequently the price of milk is influenced by the world markets. While the commerce in milk products is internationally organized, milk producers are not and as a result the price of milk in many countries does not cover the cost of production, he declared.

Urging an organization that would permit an active exchange of views on all that is of interest concerning the international marketing of milk, Dr. Laur called upon the congress to sponsor the foundation of a commission.

It is all right for Swiss cheese to be well supplied with holes, but there can be a condition of too much holes and not enough cheese, said Professor R. Burri, director of the Swiss Dairy and Research Station, another speaker. He said that experiments with green fodder stage as food for cows had failed because the cheese produced from their milk had had an excessive number of large holes, due to the peculiar fermentation caused by the silage feed.

RUTH'S PITCHING OUTDID BATTING

Bambino Does Best Work on Mound Before Hitting Spree.

(By the Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 4.—George Herman Ruth, known to fans simply as "Babe," the outstanding star of the major leagues this season, whose bat and all-round ability contributed largely to the winning of the third pennant by the Yankees, played his first championship game with the Baltimore International League club April 22, 1914.

Baltimore played Buffalo that day. Ruth pitched, allowing six hits passing four men and striking out four. Baltimore won 6 to 0. Baltimore's second sacker was Neal Ball, the first major league player to make an unassisted triple play. Ball had made his triple killing five years before while playing with Cleveland against the Boston Red Sox.

Ruth made his first appearance in the majors on July 1, 1914, with the Boston Red Sox, as a pitcher. He twirled seven innings against Cleveland, being taken out so that Duffy Lewis could pinch hit for him. The Red Sox won, 4 to 3. Ruth getting credit for the victory. He struck out one man and passed none.

The 1916 series between the Red Sox and the Brooklyn Superbas was Ruth's first championship experience. He defeated Brooklyn 2 to 1, in 14 innings on October 9, holding the Dodgers runless for the last 13 innings. In the 1918 series between the Red Sox and Chicago Cubs, Ruth won two games. On September 5 he turned back the Cubs without a score, 1 to 0 and his runless innings' record for world's series was increased to 22. Four days later he again defeated the Cubs, 3 to 2. The brace of Chicago runs came in the eighth so that Ruth increased his runless inning record to 29.

Ruth's all-round ability as pitcher, outfielder, first baseman and waller extraordinary had drawn him to the top of the star list, and in 1920 he became a member of the New York American League Club. In his last season with Boston he had hit 29 home runs. In his first season in New York he swung his bat into 34 homers, a new all time mark, and in the following year increased this record to 59.

Last year, due to many days of enforced idleness, his batting averages dropped. He accounted for 35 home runs, however. All this year he has been around the top of the batting list in both leagues. He has been a flash on the bases, a great bulwark of defense in the outfield, and proved a stimulant generally to the play of the Yankees.

English Theology Schools Declare Dearth of Students

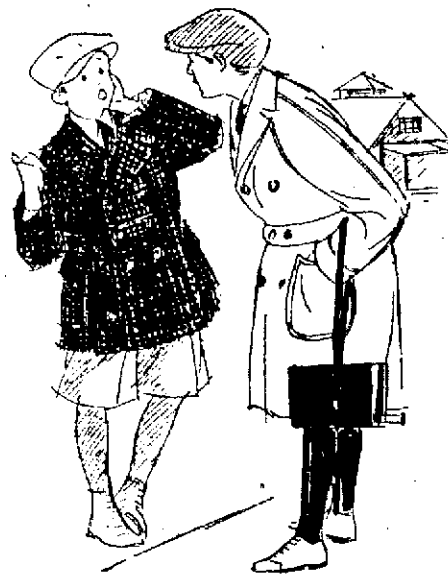

(By the Associated Press)

LONDON, Oct. 5.—According to the London newspapers, there is a grave shortage of clergy in the Church of England. Official figures disclose that there are fewer than 13,000 incumbents this year, which is 8,000 less than the number required to carry on the work of the church. The theological colleges, the newspapers say, are nearly empty.

"Our full staff should number 21,000," said Canon Partridge, secretary of the Church of England Central Board of Finance. "Taking a generation as 30 years, it follows that 700 men should be ordained every year. We have not reached that figure for 11 years. In 1918 there were only 114 ordinations."

"One of the causes of this shortage is the financial position of the professional classes from whose ranks the priesthood is usually recruited. They cannot now afford to give their sons the long and expensive training required. Another cause is the unattractiveness of the clerical profession as a career. Stipends are rarely more than $1,500 a year."

Haiti Controls Drug Traffic

(By the Associated Press)

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, Oct. 5.—The Haitian Council of State has passed a law to regulate and control the exportation, importation, possession, use or sale of narcotics, poisons and habit-forming drugs in Haiti.

The specific purpose of this legislation is to prevent the possible use of Haiti by German firms as a base for the distribution of narcotics. Previously there was no law of any description bearing on the narcotic problem and Germany, not being a signatory to the Opium Convention, was steadily increasing its imports of such substances. The passage of the act has made Haiti eligible as a signatory to this convention.

The new law is based on that which controls the use of narcotics in the United States, with certain modifications to fit local conditions.

Reflections of Good Taste in

FALL SUITS

For Men and Young Men

Men are not judged by the fineness of their clothes, but the way they wear their clothes is a reflection of their tastes.

Young men will like the loose, unconstrained appearance of our three-button model—accompanied with loose trousers and short pointed vests. Of course, there are modified models in two-button sacks that are just as smart.

Men, as a rule, like the business-like and dressy appearance of our conservative three-button styles.

Patterns in variegated stripes, checks, serges and plain chevots present an assortment that will satisfy every whim.

PERMANENT RELIEF FROM PYORRHEA

"Pyro-form"—the Result of Years of Research

(Contains No Creosote)

While dental surgeons and chemists have experimented for years to discover a remedy for Pyorrhea, only recently has any real progress been made in combating the disease. A new remedy known as "Pyro-form" was perfected only a short time ago by the Pyro-form Company, San Bernardino, California, and has already given effective results in hundreds of cases, many of which were considered incurable. Users of the preparation claim that it eliminates all trace of Pyorrhea within a short time, and in addition strengthens the gums and restores the teeth to a sound state.

Results have been so consistent that "Pyro-form" is now sold on a positive money-back guarantee, so that people suffering with the disease risk nothing in trying this remedy. Price $3 per carton. It is on sale at

PERMANENT RELIEF FROM PYORRHEA

"Pyro-form"—the Result of Years of Research

(Contains No Creosote)

While dental surgeons and chemists have experimented for years to discover a remedy for Pyorrhea, only recently has any real progress been made in combating the disease. A new remedy known as "Pyro-form" was perfected only a short time ago by the Pyro-form Company, San Bernardino, California, and has already given effective results in hundreds of cases, many of which were considered incurable. Users of the preparation claim that it eliminates all trace of Pyorrhea within a short time, and in addition strengthens the gums and restores the teeth to a sound state.

Results have been so consistent that "Pyro-form" is now sold on a positive money-back guarantee, so that people suffering with the disease risk nothing in trying this remedy. Price $3 per carton. It is on sale at DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—Now Father Will Undoubtedly Seek Lessons Elsewhere.

BY F. LEUZIGER

Farmers' Column—By—
Byron NorrellOklahoma Crop Notes

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 2.—Oklahoma is again given front page mention in the leading newspapers of the East. This time, the publicity is of such nature as to lead to good whatever in the development of our great resources. It is indeed unfortunate that the political situation now existing is of such nature as might impair economic conditions and throw doubtful ideas among eastern people as to the advantages of Oklahoma. It has been the lot of Oklahoma in recent publicity from the east to go from one extreme to the other. This is injurious to the growth and prosperity of any commonwealth. Much accurate information has reached editors of eastern papers and published without being challenged or counteracted.

Now is the opportune time for Oklahoma to launch a campaign of reliable facts throughout the various states of the Union. Let our people write the folks back home and explain to them that Oklahoma is not as black as she has been painted, but in fact is a leader not only in agriculture but in the production of natural resources and a progressive citizenship. The Board of Agriculture is preparing to do its part and is now having printed a bulletin under the caption "Oklahoma Leads." Thousands of these will be mailed to people out of the state informing them of true opportunities to be had within our borders.

Oklahoma will produce this year approximately 791,000 bales of cotton, according to the last official estimate. Say for instance the lint of this crop averages 23 cents per pound; the value of the crop would be about $90,935,000 as compared with last year's value of $73,025,000.

Oklahoma will produce this year about 27,900 tons of broom corn which will carry a value of approximately $4,982,000 based on an average of $175 per ton. Last year the crop brought $3,834,000. Oklahoma produces more broom corn each year than all other broom corn growing states combined.

Oklahoma produced 6,017,000 bushels more of wheat this year than last and the quality of the grain was excellent due to the most favorable weather during harvest. The forecast indicates a production of 19,721,000 bushels of grain sorghums which will carry a value of $15,775,000 if the price is no higher than it was last year.

Drouth seriously affected the production of both tame and wild hays in Oklahoma this year, cutting the yield materially below last year. The forecast of production on pecans is 2,258,000 pounds more than last year.

Of the 77 counties in the state, 38 produce oil or gas or both. 300 townships produce oil or gas. In 1922, there were approximately 35,437 producing wells, 242 separate and distinct producing fields. In 1922, Oklahoma produced 150 million barrels of crude oil valued at $150,000,000. The value of lead and zinc produced in Oklahoma in 1922 was exceeded in the years 1915, '16, '17 and 1920, but the results of the 1922 operations show that the industry is now recovering from a serious depression.

The season for the inspection of Oklahoma nurseries has come to a close with the inspector reporting a total of 60 nurseries having received investigation. The damage from the white ant was negligible this year, while last year the injury was said to be great.

A canoe in the hands of a despondent lover and an automobile in the hands of a drunken driver are the nation's greatest slipping evils.

It is reported that a certain couple while driving on the highway did not discover that the gas tank was empty until they had remained where they were for four hours.

He even adored the ground she walked on.

In the first place there was plenty of it and quite valuable in its location.

In the second place she was the only child.

So, I repeat, he adored the ground she walked on.

Poster Artists to Meet

CINCINNATI, Oct. 5.—Many of the greatest artists and art teachers in the world are expected here next week to attend the 33d annual convention of the Poster Advertising Association, according to officers of the association. Approximately 1,000 delegates will be present.

The general public has been invited to attend all sessions in order that it may learn of what the poster people are trying to accomplish in their crusade for clean outdoor advertising. The organization, according to the officers, does not go in for the erection of bill boards but considers them an "abuse" of outdoor advertising.

RUTH ASKS HOME RUN SERIES GAIT

Bambino Seeking New Honor
From World Series
This Year.

NEW YORK, Oct. 5.—Home runs have played an important part in the world's series at as yet the records reveal no startling feats of clouting by the greatest hitter of them all—Babe Ruth. The Bambino starred as a twirler with the Red Sox in the series of 1916 and 1918 but, as a regular outfielder with the Yankees, he was handicapped by injuries in the 1921 series and last season was badly off form.

Playing the best all-around game of his career this year, Ruth may come into his own in the championship struggle and take his place among the hitting immortals of the title classic.

Ruth has one homer in his series record, made in 1921. The marks at which he will try to shoot this fall include the best all-time series total, three, held jointly by J. Franklin Baker and Larry Gardner; the highest total for a single series two, held jointly by eleven players; and the single game record of two, held by Harry Hooper and Benny Kauff.

Elmer Smith, now a member of the Yankees, holds the only player ever to hit a homer with the bases full during a series, a feat he accomplished with Cleveland in the 1920 series with Brooklyn. The homer was made off Burleigh Grimes.

The greatest fame as a series clouter belongs to "Home Run" Baker, of the old Athletics. Curiously enough, all three of Baker's circuit wallpops were recorded at the expense of the Giants, two of them winning games for the Mack-men. In the 1911 series, Baker's home run off Marquard in the same of October 16, with Collins on base, and the score tied, gave the verdict to the Philadelphia club 3 to 1. Two years later, a homer by Baker gave the Athletics their winning margin in a game with the Giants, again with Marquard pitching and Collins on the bags.

Baker's other homer, made in the 1911 series, was off Mathewson, and came in the ninth inning with the Giants leading, 1 to 0. It thus tied the score and the Athletics won out in the eleventh.

Other homers that proved deciding factors in series contests were made by Joe Tinker, of the old Chicago Cubs; Fred Clarke, when he was manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates; Danny Murphy, of the Athletics; Harry Hooper, of the Red Sox; Larry Gardner of Cleveland; Oscar Felsch, of the Chicago White Sox; and Benny Kauff, of the Giants.

"Volunteer day" was recently celebrated in Paris, when delegations of foreign volunteers of 20 nations, including Americans, took their old battle flags from the war museum and assembled in the Invalides court. Nine years ago, 20,000 foreigners volunteered for service in the French army.
